Virginia Employment Commission Extends Deadline for Filing and Paying Employer Taxes

The Virginia Employment Commission (VEC) deadline for filing and paying quarterly taxes for the quarter ending September 30, 2012, has been extended to Friday, November 9. When filing from November 1-9, the amount to be paid should be changed to include tax due only. No penalty or interest will be due for filings made through November 9.

Employers who are unable to meet the November 9 extension of the due date because of Hurricane Sandy related circumstances should write to the VEC, Attention: Auditing Department, P. O. Box 1358, Richmond, Virginia 23218-1358. Employers must request an extension of their filing and include a brief explanation of the circumstances that caused the late filing. These requests must be made along with the paper report or sent by mail after filing the report through iFile or web upload. Employer account numbers must be included with the request for extension, as well as on the paper report.
